JD LAWRENCE'S TULSA 1921

SHOW SYNOPSIS

It's been over a hundred years since the attack on Greenwood in Tulsa, Oklahoma. The event happened following World War I, also known as the race riot. It took place in the affluent nationally known business district called Black Wall Street. A curious local reporter looking for the truth has tracked down a living survivor at Lawrenceville Nursing Home in hopes of learning the truth of what happened. Although the details over the years vary from person to person, his story is just another.

This is a fundraising event for the construction of an African American Museum in Huntington. The museum seeks to celebrate with the general public the contributions of people of African ancestry and their role in the creation of a community that represents the diversity of America.

We have a multi-million dollar fundraising goal to realize this project. The project will include building the Museum, landscaping, and parking, as well as the support of exhibits and programming to be presented at the Museum throughout the year.
